FARMERS' CLUB POPULAR PLACE

Residents of Jackson and Adjoining Counties Meet for First Annual Celebration.

BIG DINNER SERVED AT NOON

Dr. A. W. Millis, of Hanover, and County Agent A. D. Cobb, Deliver Addresses.

The Farmers' Club today was a popular retreat for scores of farmers and their families, of Jackson and adjoining counties, who gathered there in celebration of the first anniversary of the dedication of the handsome building. The event was arranged by a number of farmers who are especially interested in the success and welfare of the club and who believe that a celebration should be held on its first birthday anniversary.

The club building was beautifully decorated with greenery and flowers for the occasion, this work having been in charge of the matron, Miss Florence Love, who was greatly interested in the success of the event. The mantel was a mass of green and in various places in the living room and dining room were large bouquets of fall flowers. Dr. J. H. Howes, of Sellersburg, who has frequently remembered the club with handsome bouquets, sent three large boxes of dahlias there today. The flowers were of an unusually large variety of variegated colors. A number of town people also sent flowers to be used in the decorations. The farmers began arriving at the club building about nine o'clock, many of them leaving their baskets there while they spent the forenoon visiting the local shops. At the noon hour all of the visitors assembled in the dining room to enjoy the elegant buffet dinner which was spread upon the table. That the lady members of the club are excellent cooks was fully demonstrated by the tables heavily laden with various kinds of appetizing foods. The menu consisted of everything that one could desire. Among the specially invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Blish, the trustees, and representatives of the press.

Following the dinner several sections of music were given by the Hancock orchestra and the Reddington Band. James Luckey, of Reddington township, one of the leaders in the movement to celebrate the club anniversary was master of ceremonies and following the program of music introduced A. D. Cobb, county agricultural agent. Mr. Cobb complimented the Farmers Club and said:

"I have been wondering if this gathering of farmers and their families today is accidental in its significance or merely symbolical of the modern trend of rural activities. While this beautiful club house is unique in its relation to the farmers of the county and has no counterpart in the United States today, and it is not possible for any other body of farmers to gather together and enjoy the same privileges you are enjoying today, I like to think that this

ATTEMPT MADE TO TAKE CHILD'S LIFE

Unknown Party Believed to Have Given Acid to Babe of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Baurley.

INFANT BUT TEN DAYS OLD

Mouth and Tongue are Severely Burned by Poison—Baby in a Critical Condition.

The ten-days-old babe of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Baurley, who live east of Acme, in Hamilton township, is in a critical condition and may possibly die as a result of a dose of carbolic acid administered by an unknown party supposedly with criminal intent. The acid was given to the infant about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon while the room in which it was lying, was vacated. Mrs. Baurley heard the baby gasping for breath and on entering the room detected the odor of the acid. A physician was called and spent the entire night at the Baurley home in the hope of saving the baby's life.

So far as known today there is no positive clue to the party who is believed to have committed the dastardly deed, although it is reported that there are some grounds for suspicion. There was no carbolic acid at the Baurley home and it must have been brought there by an outside party. The child's tongue and mouth are badly burned and the outside of its little throat is also streaked, showing where the acid had been spilled in the effort to get it into the child's mouth. The physician was unable to ascertain if any of the acid was swallowed by the baby, but it is feared that a little may have reached the inside of its throat. Every effort is being made to save the baby's life.

At the time the acid was administered Mr. Baurley and the girl, who is employed at their home, were milking near the barn and Mrs. Baurley had just gone into the kitchen to aid in the preparation of the evening meal. The baby's crib had been placed in the front room and the child was quiet when its mother went into the kitchen. She had not been there very long until she heard the baby crying and gasping when she went to the side of its crib, she immediately detected the odor of the acid. So far as known no one was seen around the house at that time and must have left a few minutes before. Mr. and Mrs. Baurley are highly respected people of Hamilton township and are heartbroken over the sad affair. Their neighbors are thoroughly aroused over the case and have offered all the assistance they can.

About four years ago an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Baurley's died quite suddenly after a short illness. The child was in perfect health but suddenly went to sleep and did not awaken. It was thought at that time that possibly someone might have given the baby some drug, but nothing could be positively shown.

The deed is one of the most outrageous that could possibly be imagined and was evidently perpetrated by someone who thought they were seeking vengeance upon the family.

"Foxey" Music Furnished By the Reddington Band

The Reddington Band, which furnished the music for the Farmers' Club celebration today, is a "Foxey" organization and as such furnishes "Foxey" music. Among the musicians of this band are six Foxes, four of them being brothers. The band delighted the visitors at the Club during the forenoon and gave an excellent program this afternoon. Rol Vandergrift, of Columbus, directed the band today. The musicians have been playing together for several years and the band is recognized as one of the best in the county.

SHERIFF ROBERTSON RETURNS WITH ALLEGED HORSE THIEF

George Bennett, Formerly of Crothersville, is Charged With Taking Horse and Buggy.

Sheriff Robertson returned today from Monon, Ind., with George Bennett, who was arrested there on suspicion of having stolen the horse and buggy which was taken from Prof. Ude, of Dudleytown, last month. Bennett was formerly employed at a blacksmith shop in Crothersville and is reported to have been at Dudleytown on the afternoon of the evening the robbery occurred. Suspicion has attached to him for some time and when his whereabouts were ascertained the officers there were asked to keep an eye on him.

Bennett was placed in jail here this morning and when arraigned in the mayor's court on a grand larceny charge he waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to circuit court and his bond fixed at $1,000, which he was trying to secure today.

The charge of grand larceny, which carried a minimum sentence of one year's imprisonment, may possibly be changed to one of horse stealing in which event Bennett will face a three year sentence in case he is found guilty. The horse and buggy have been returned to Prof. Ude.

BIG SWEET POTATO CROP PRODUCED ON TOWN LOTS

John McClintock Grows Unusually Large Potatoes of the Yellow Jersey Variety.

John McClintock owns some lots in the town of Reddington and this summer decided to use the ground for growing sweet potatoes. In the tract there were ninety square rods which produced over 150 bushels of as fine potatoes as have been displayed here this year.

The crop was tended by Mr. McClintock's grandson, Ennis McClintock, who has just finished digging up the potatoes. Mr. McClintock brought in several samples of the crop and they are on display in the window at the Republican Office. One is unusually long and the others are very large. They are of the Yellow Jersey variety.

Sheepshead Bay Speedway, L. I., October 9.—Twenty of the world's greatest race drivers got away promptly at noon today in the 350-mile drive for the Astor cup on the New York new Speedway. The day was clear and the temperature low.

Resta's Peugeot held the lead until the 106th mile when it broke a connecting rod and dropped from the race. Anderson was leading at 160 miles, having smashed all American speed records for the distance. At the 190th mile mark Aitken took the lead, which he held until the 240th when he went out. Rooney took the lead.

SERBIAN RESISTANCE KEEPS ENEMY BACK

Austro-Germans Unable to Effect Crossing of Boundary Rivers, Says Statement.

By United Press.

Vienna, October 9.—Serbian resistance to the Austro-German crossing of the boundary rivers has proved a vain attempt, said an official statement issued here today.

To the Serbian claim that the invaders had failed to cross the rivers, the only answer was that the attempt to advance had been fruitless at all points.

PARIS STATEMENT SAYS TEUTONS WERE DEFEATED

Re-enforcement for General Mackensen will be Sent, It is Predicted.

By United Press.

Paris, October 9.—So decisively have the Serbians defeated the Austro-Germans who tried to capture the Belgrade-Constantinople railroad that it was predicted that no further advance would be attempted until General Mackensen had been heavily re-enforced, stated dispatches from Nish today.

UNIVERSITY ART EXHIBIT HERE

Collection of Masterpieces Will be on Display All Next Week at High School Building.

DISPLAY OPEN TO PUBLIC

Is the First of a Series of Exhibits Planned for Winter By The Seymour Art League.

Art lovers of the city will be pleased to learn that the loan exhibit of pictures belonging to the State University at Bloomington has been secured by the Seymour Art League, and the pictures will be on display in the corridors of the high school building all of next week.

The exhibit consists of eighteen pictures which have been carefully selected, both for their artistic and educational value, and they will be well worth a visit to the high school. There are three groupings of the pictures, as follows: six photographs of world masterpieces, by the greatest artists of all time; five drawings and water colors by American and European artists; and seven etchings and engravings by artists of Germany, England and America.

The exhibit is open to the public, and all who are interested in art are invited to call any afternoon next week or on Sunday afternoon, October 17th. This is the first of a series of exhibits planned by the Art League for the winter season, and as it is one of the best collections in the country, the League is to be congratulated on securing it for Seymour, as there are only a few cities that are favored with the loan.

The pictures arrived in the city today, and they will be placed in position by Monday afternoon, when the exhibit will be opened to the public.

BELL CASE WILL GO TO JURY TUESDAY

Believed That Final Arguments in Election Conspiracy Trial Will End Then.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, October 9.—The last stage of the election conspiracy trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell was begun today when Deputy Prosecutor Adams began the closing arguments. These arguments will probably be concluded Tuesday noon when the case will go to the jury. The defense and then the state closed unexpectedly yesterday afternoon.

Prosecutor Adams said that the indictment could not be a "child of vengeance of the prosecutor. If Bell committed any one act charged against him he is guilty of conspiracy," said the deputy prosecutor. Adams declared the county chairman is a power of the greatest good or evil during the election and said that Bell controlled Chairman Barrett for evil purposes.

Clyde Poulter, of Kansas City, Mo., humorous entertainer and impersonator, was here this morning and closed a contract with the Loyal Devoir Society of the Christian church for an entertainment here on November 15.

Phillies Park, Philadelphia, October 9.—George Foster, the smallest pitcher in base ball this afternoon, won single handed the second game of the world's series from Philadelphia 2 to 1.

Picture if you can, about as tense a moment as the grand old game ever saw, the ninth inning, score tied one and one, two out and the winning run awaiting on second base. Then if your imagination is revolving put a pitcher who has chucked a brainy and clever a game as a world's series ever saw at bat. That man was George Foster. And Foster sent a screaming single on a sizzling line over second base and Gardner came in with the run that boosted Boston's stock about 100 per cent.

Today's game was full of those tense moments. One side was always threatening to break up the game but never quite succeeding. Foster pitched probably the best game ever seen by a world's series crowd, and certainly the best game that President Wilson ever saw or probably ever will see.

About 20,000 fans saw the second world series game here this afternoon, but they looked half of the time at the President's finance and the President, who occupied a box. In vain did the athletes strike heroic poses. The photographers spent their time getting a "shot" at the big solitary diamond on Mrs. Galt's third finger. The game was delayed four minutes awaiting their arrival.

Mayer took the mound for the Phillies with Burns receiving, while Foster and Thomas composed the Boston battery.

"Preparedness"

This word has loomed large in the news of the last year. It has frequently been linked with another vital word—"SUCCESS."

It is an important word to the business man—a word that robs competition of its terrors. "Preparedness" includes a definite expenditure for advertising to intrinche the business or product in public good will. It means the kind of "business insurance" advertising brings.

This newspaper will be very glad to discuss with any business man this phase of "business preparedness."

ANTI-DEMOCRATIC ORGANIZATION.

The cleavage in the old Republican party of Jefferson became distinct in Indiana 1824-1828. On the one hand was the new Jacksonian Democracy. On the other were the National Republicans, led by Adams, Clay and Webster, descendants of the old Federalists. Both parties organized in Indiana in January, 1828. The latter, known as the administration in Clay-Adams party, contained the office holders and the men of dignity, education and oratory. They had a more definite and more logical platform than their opponents, but were weaker in organization and possibly in enthusiasm.

DIXIE HIGHWAY IS FORMALLY OPENED TODAY

Hundreds of Good Roads Enthusiasts Gather at Danville, Ill., For the Event.

By United Press.
Danville, Ill., October 9.—This city today is entertaining an illustrious gathering of good road enthusiasts, the occasion being the opening of the Dixie Highway extending from Chicago to Florida. Governor Dunne arrived here late this afternoon and delivered an address to a large gathering of good roads boosters.

The governor and members of the Highway commission came from Chicago in automobiles via the new highway. Rep. Homer Tice, of Greenville, delivered an address. Tice is author of the Illinois good roads law. Invitations also were extended to Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, James Wilson, members of the state highway commission, Len Small of Kankakee, president of the state board of agriculture, and many others.

The festivities opened with an automobile parade. The parade moved north to the end of the state aid road and then returned to the speakers stand north of the city, where addresses were delivered.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED.

The liquor interests have unwittingly given prohibition in West Virginia much valuable publicity. Their frantic efforts to prove that a deficit in the state treasury is due to the loss of liquor revenue has called forth from loyal citizens of the "little mountain state" strong testimonials on the subject. In the light of the moral, social and economic benefits derived from the prohibitory law, testified to by men of every class, a deficiency of a few thousand dollars seems of comparatively little importance.

As a matter of fact the loss of the $600,000 a year in revenue to West Virginia as a result of the adoption of the constitutional prohibition amendment does not impose upon the individual taxpayer any burden worth considering. In a letter written by the state auditor, which has recently been made public, he shows that five cents additional state taxes on the hundred-dollar valuation will take care of the money loss on liquor licenses. This would cost a man whose property was assessed at $1,000, fifty cents; if he has $2,000 worth, he would have to pay one dollar, and if he had $10,000, he would be obliged to expend five dollars. So much for the enormous load of taxation being thrust upon the property owners of the state because of prohibition! The payment of such insignificant amounts would certainly appeal to a level-headed business man as a mighty good investment.

DRINKERS' DEATH RATE HIGH.

Startling evidence of the effect of alcohol on the moderate drinkers is offered by the Life Extension institute. The bulletin issued to its members shows that in one Canadian and three British life insurance companies the mortality among so-called moderate drinkers, accepted as temperate and healthy risks, exceeded the death rate among the abstainers by 78, 37, 52 and 44 per cent, respectively.

New data was recently compiled by forty-three American life insurance companies, covering a period of twenty-five years, with the following results: Steady moderate drinkers, accepted as standard risks, death rate 86 per cent above the average. Former drinkers (admitting past excesses), death rate 50 per cent above the average. Very moderate drinkers, 18 per cent above the average.

"Experimental laboratory work," says the board of scientific authorities, "has kept pace with statistical investigation, and the knowledge gained from the laboratory, not only in experiments on animals, but on man himself, shows

County and National Prohibition parties and other organizations.

"We are out to make a cleanup. Chicago will go dry at the next election, April 4, 1916," said G. F. Rinehart, Clinton, Ia., head of the Dry Chicago Federation. "The women are going to do it for us."

Rinehart is the man who made Arizona dry. He walked into the mining camps of Arizona amid that a higher death rate among alcohol users is what we would naturally expect to find in the light of what we know regarding its effects on the body."

POOR OLD JOHN.

John Barleycorn the swaggering, just now is badly staggering beneath repeated blows; for kings say, "He is ruinous—dogast the stuff he's brewin' us," and biff him on the nose. The kings, alert and vigorous, are taking measures rigorous, to swat old John again: "He's worse than guns and sabers are," remark the kings, "his labors are addressed to drowning men. Out where our flags are shimmering the bottle must go glimmering, it makes the soldier rude; it spoils the ardent warrior, and nothing could be sorrier than fighting men half steeved." Thus speak the Lord's anointed ones, and they are the appointed ones their people's weal to guard; they see that John, the lecherous, is vicious, mean and treacherous, and so they soak him hard. And if, in Europe's villages, old John, who slays and pillages, runs up against a frost, the war, with all its slaughtering, that leaves the nations tottering, is well worth what it cost.—Walt Mason.

ATTITUDE OF CATHOLIC CHURCH.

"All the great Catholic societies refuse membership to those engaged in the liquor business," says Mr. John F. Cunneen, prominent Catholic and labor leader. "In Maine the Catholics have a majority of the church membership, and you know how Maine stands on the liquor question. In Cambridge, Mass., the Catholic church membership equals 71 per cent of the total church membership, and for 28 years Cambridge has outlawed the saloon. While the Catholic may vote as he pleases upon the saloon question, the church gives him no argument in favor of the saloon. On the contrary, all the arguments are against it. Rev. James E. Cassidy of Fall River, Mass., once said: 'You dare not pray for the saloon.' No Catholic who follows Father Cassidy's advice will vote for the saloon."

INCREASED POPULATION.

We learn from United States census bulletins that of the nine middle western states Kansas, from 1900 to 1910, increased in population 15 per cent; Missouri, 6 per cent; Wisconsin, 12; Nebraska, 11; Indiana, 7; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 18. In spite of the growth of Chicago, Illinois increased but 17 per cent. Iowa shows an actual loss of 3 per cent. Of the states mentioned, Kansas is the only one that advanced during the ten years in both crops and manufactures.

threats, but went out amid cheers.

Following the parade, petitions to have the proposition put on the ballot will be circulated. A force of 1,000 speakers will harangue voters.

Growing Interest Shown In Unique Local Institution

The Farmers' Club—Seymour's urban home for rural residents—is one year old. The idea exemplified in this unique institution is entirely new, and the opening of the handsome building to the farmers of Jackson and adjoining counties was an epochal event in the modern rural life movement. Students of rural problems were awakened to new possibilities when the announcement was made one year ago that this unique institution was to be erected. They realized that a long felt want had been met and were equally anxious to acquaint themselves with the plan by which it was to be conducted.

For years those interested in rural life problems have recognized that accommodations such as are afforded by this club, were needed in every trading center for the visiting farmers and especially their families. But just how these accommodations could be provided was the problem to be worked out.

It remained for M. S. Blish, of this city, to offer the solution. As a life long resident of this city, a trading center for a large territory, he had noticed that when a farmer came to the city and was accompanied by his family the latter frequently had no place to spend the time while the father or husband was completing the purpose of his trip. The merchants, of course, were glad to give the visitors such accommodations as they could and welcomed them to their stores after they had finished their shopping tour, but frequently these accommodations were meager.

Mr. Blish then conceived of the idea of building a city home or club where the wives and daughters of visiting farmers would not only feel free to go, but where the accommodations and conveniences of their own homes would be found. For more than a year Mr. Blish studied his plan but as there was no similar institution to be found anywhere in the United States the original idea had to be developed entirely by himself. However, he discussed it with a number of leading farmers to find out the most practical kind of a building that could be erected. With these suggestions he laid out his original idea on paper from which the plans for the building which now stands on South Chestnut street, were finally drafted.

Like any new movement the full advantages and possibilities of the Farmers' Club were not to be acquired at once by those privileged to membership. The idea was so novel that the purpose had to be explained. In this day of mad rush for gold it is not at all surprising that it was difficult for many of those eligible to membership to understand why such accommodations would be offered absolutely without expense. And, in this connection, for those who are not familiar with the origin of the institution, it may not be amiss to explain that the Farmers' Club is a memorial to Captain Meedy W. Shields, the founder of Seymour. It was erected by the Blish estate, of which M. S. Blish is the senior member; and is amply endowed by the donors. There is no cost attached to membership and the privileges are available to all persons in Jackson and adjoining counties who make their livelihood wholly or in part from agricultural pursuits. City residents are not entitled to any of the privileges.

However, there were hundreds of farmers in this and neighboring counties who did understand the purpose of the Farmers' Club and who were ready and anxious to become members. Many of these have made splendid use of the building, their families have enjoyed the comfortable living rooms, within its walls they have been sheltered from the cold winds of the winter and from the burning sun of the summer months. They have fully appreciated the institution and have found from experience that it affords rare accommodations which cannot be found anywhere else. These families have done much to popularize the institution. They have become enthusiastic over its value from personal knowledge and want the Club to become the real center of agricultural activity in this county.

From the time the Club was formally dedicated by Secretary of Agriculture Houston to the present day the membership has steadily increased. Applications have been filed from all parts of the county. The farmers are more anxious to become affiliated with the institution's membership for they do not know what day they will want to take ad-expense, it is altogether possible for every community to have such a Club. It is not out of the question for the farmers of a county to erect such a building on a co-operative plan. In every county there are thousands of rural residents who would gladly contribute a small amount for such a building and while the individual expense would be small, the aggregate sum would be sufficient to erect and endow a building of beauty and comfort. But for the farmers of Jackson and neighboring counties all this has been done for them. They have not been asked to spend one penny either for the building or for its upkeep. Its conveniences are provided for them and they are invited to take advantage of them. Such a condition is not to be found anywhere else and the rural residents are to be congratulated upon the rare opportunity that is placed before them.

The Farmers' Club is especially appreciated by the wives and daughters of the farmers. To them the city home with modern conveniences means much. They are afforded an ideal place for meeting their friends or resting while waiting for other members of the family before returning to their home.

On the library table in the living room will be found current copies of periodicals and farm magazines in which subjects of peculiar interest to them are discussed. The building is in charge of an accommodating matron who is always ready to aid and assist the visitors in any way she can. The Club is open each day in the week, except Sunday, from 8 o'clock a. m. until 5 o'clock p. m.

During the last few months a number of families that come to the city regularly have found it convenient to bring dishes to the Farmers' Club and leave them in the pantry. It is then only necessary for them to bring their dinner with them and they are assured of a splendid place to enjoy it. The dining room is one of the attractive rooms of the Club. It is well lighted and is kept in an absolutely sanitary condition.

Adjoining the dining room is a well equipped kitchen in which will be found an electric coffee heater, a sink for washing dishes and a stove for heating water. A refrigerator is even provided where dishes of food may be kept until the hour of the meal.

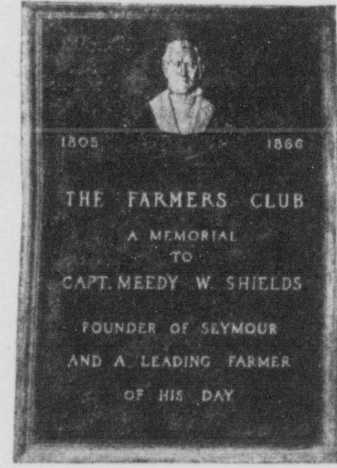

On either side of the living room is a small room that is attractive to children. In these rooms are found cribs, jumpers and small chairs. The living room itself is large and comfortable. The furniture is leather upholstered and the large divans are inviting. In this room there is a writing table supplied with stationery bearing the imprint of the Club. The telephone is also convenient to many of the callers who desire to communicate with their homes or with friends throughout the city or county. During the winter months the large fire place in the living room is most attractive. Above this is a bronze table bearing the bas-relief of Capt. Shields under which is the inscription stating that the building is dedicated to him, "a leading farmer of his day."

During the last year Mr. Blish has received hundreds of inquiries concerning the Club. The institution is recognized as one of the most advanced steps that has been taken in the rural development movement in years and the results are closely watched. The success of the Club depends upon the interest that is manifested by the farmers for whom it was built and so elaborately furnished.

The progress that has been made by the Farmers' Club during the first year of its existence has been very satisfactory. That the institution will continue to grow in popularity is clearly apparent. Whatever timidity some prospective members might have had concerning membership because of their lack of familiarity with the purpose of the Club and its novelty, is being overcome by the general use that is made of it. It is open at all times for meetings of farmers and they are urged to gather there. The dining room can easily be arranged to accommodate a large number of persons in such a meeting by removing the tables and re-arranging the chairs. Additional folding chairs are kept in the basement for use on such occasions. During the last twelve months a number of such gatherings have been held.

The first anniversary which was observed with a basket dinner was planned by the farmers who are alert to the splendid opportunities of the Club. Besides the pleasant social feature of such a gathering such meetings are profitable and instructive to those that attend. This basket dinner may result in other affairs of similar character and may even lead to a closer organization among the farmers of this community which can do a vast amount of good. This is the day of co-operation in rural life as well as in industrial life. An advanced step has been taken and just how far it will be developed is yet a matter of conjecture.

The farmers of Jackson and adjoining counties are progressive. They have taken the lead in a number of important movements in southern Indiana and it is possible that through the Farmers' Club and the uses that can be made of it this leadership may be emphasized. During the next year the progress that is made by the local institution will be followed by rural life interests throughout the country and if the present enthusiasm is continued the advancement will be a recommendation to the members.

INDIANA COLLEGE TEAMS
TRY TO GET ON RIGHT FOOT

Hoosier Foot Ball "Dope" is Upset by Opening Contests Last Saturday.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, October 9.—Indiana college football teams today made an attempt to get off on the right foot, a thing which few of them did in the opening last Saturday. Not in recent years has Hoosier football been upset as it was last week.

The two Hoosier members of the Big Nine continued their practice games, Indiana meeting Miami university at Bloomington and Purdue taking on Beloit college. The game that promised the most interest to-

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, tissues, joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face."

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'sentinel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentinal tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unslightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallowness or muddy skin, usually are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew it, there is a very simple remedy, to be found in any drug store, which is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized by the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost no one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentinal tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no bit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth, and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so easy, so soothing, and instead of a weakening after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentinal tablets are not only the simplest remedy known for constipation and torpid liver, but offer the sanest, most sensible treatment for complexion difficulties of the character mentioned.

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the advent of the "sentinal tablet" as a vegetable substitute for calomel has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. It seems to have made a hit of particular interest with those afflicted with chronic constipation, who were quick to recognize its advantages over calomel and the usual laxatives.

Sentinal tablets, aside from their efficacy, doubtless owe their success largely to a tendency to aid in bringing about natural functioning—instead of encouraging the "cathartic habit." Also, instead of injuring the membranous lining of the organs involved, they exert a healing influence. Instead of weakening, they add tone to the intestinal wall. And they work so easily and gently, they are of course preferred on this account to the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpensiveness is another reason for the popularity of sentinal tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

vantage of the privileges offered them. The application blanks are obtained from any of the trustees which the by-laws provide shall be the presidents of the three leading banks of Seymour. The present trustees are C. D. Billings, H. C. Johnson and J. H. Matlock. J. H. Andrews was also named as secretary of the board. All serve without pay and are actively interested in the growth and welfare of the Club.

During the last few months the membership growth has been more rapid than ever before which is indicative of the growing popularity of the Club. There are now more than one thousand farmers enrolled on the membership records. Besides this number there are between three and four thousand associate members, the families of the enrolled members, who are equally entitled to all the accommodations that are provided. These figures furnish some idea of the popularity of the institution and the manner in which those eligible of membership are availing themselves of the privileges.

Because of the rapidly growing interest in the Club during the last few months it is quite apparent that the future growth will be still more rapid. There are hundreds of farmers in this community who will affiliate with the institution before it celebrates another anniversary.

For this unique institution the future holds great possibilities. The idea which has been originated in Seymour by a Seymour man can be developed beyond what is even now believed possible. While it is not probable that every community has an individual or an estate that will erect such a building free of charge, provide an adequate endowment for its maintenance and throw open its doors to the public without a cent of CO-OPERATIVE METHODS. The celebration at the Farmers' Club today is of especial significance. It was more than a gathering of progressive farmers for a social meeting. It is a part of the great movement for the improvement of rural life conditions which is sweeping the country. The Farmers' Club itself is a forward step in this movement and this unique institution will be the center of many important meetings.

Co-operation is the watchword in all lines of activity. It is this spirit that is sweeping the country for effective action, in industrial, agricultural, religious and social circles. Those who are engaged in the same line of activity are interested in the same things.

In agricultural circles two lines are being developed—crop production and social life. The farmers are entitled to the best that they can get out of life. With modern inventions they are enabled to have most of the conveniences found in a modern city home and with the greater crop productions brought about by scientific and intensified farming, they can acquire the means of improving social conditions. The one works hand in hand with the other.

The Farmers' Club is a more important institution than many know. It has attracted attention throughout the country as being the first of its kind ever erected. The idea of providing a club home in a city for rural residents is entirely new and the plan must be developed before the greatest success will be obtained. In this county the farmers are fortunate in having this building erected for them and thrown open to them without cost, which is only another reason why they should use it and get all the benefit from it they can.

Notice. Commencing Monday, October 11, the following Taxi rates will be in effect: 15 cents for one passenger; 25 cents for two passengers; 10 cents each for three or more passengers to any part of the city. Extra charges will be made for calls before seven o'clock in the morning and after nine-thirty at night.

AUCTION SALE REAL ESTATE

The undersigned will offer at public sale to the highest bidder, on the premises, 4 1/2 miles east and 2 miles north of Reddington, 6 miles southeast of Azalia and 13 miles southeast of Columbus, in Geneva township, Jennings county, Indiana, on

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12th The Following Described Real Estate To-wit:

180 ACRES of corn and clover land in the valley between Seymour and Columbus. It is a dark, limestone soil, and the farm is practically level all over. There are two sets of improvements which are in fair condition; one house has 6 rooms and the other 5; one barn 45x55 and one 24x36; two small orchards; 40 acres of cut over timber land; a part of the farm is tile drained and there is considerable good fence, but a great deal more of each is needed. The farm is capable of producing of the crops grown in the Indiana corn belt. The farm lays 3 1/2 miles west of Scipio, a good railroad town, and is 1 1/2 miles of good Double School and church. The farm lays nice, being 160x180 rods.

This farm will probably sell around $60 or $70 per acre, and will equal many farms in the state that sell for much over the $100 mark. You will doubtless do yourself an injustice if you do not arrange to attend this sale, as it goes to the highest bidder. Upon request free conveyance will be furnished from any local inter-urban or rail road station. We live on the place and shall be pleased to have you call and inspect it at any time.

TERMS OF SALE

$1,000 cash to be paid or day of sale and the balance on or before March 1st, 1916, at which time possession is to be given. A loan of $3,500 may be carried on the farm if the purchaser desires. Title guaranteed.

club and this gathering are symbolic of a greater and fuller co-operative movement among the farmers than we have yet seen.

"We have watched with interest the great changes of recent years in the methods of tilling the soil, selecting the seed, and marketing the crops. We have seen much of the hopelessness and drudgery of farm life removed by the introduction of modern conveniences, but there still remains much to accomplish.

"The evolution of the farming business has followed that of the merchant and the manufacturer. The advantages of the latter, however, have not been enjoyed by the farmers, who have been so bulwarked about by a wall of public prejudice.

"And still great progress has been made. The social changes have been different. How many of you remember the good times you had at the old fashioned husking bees and the barn dances—for dancing was not a crime and a mockery then. People went because they craved the companionship of others. With the introduction of the telephone, the parcel post and the Henry Ford things times have changed. It is so easy to get in touch with your neighbor, and if we go at all it must be to the town or city—to the moving picture show and the white lights where too often our entertainment is a mockery and our pleasure a sham.

"The upward progress of the farm business has been slow. The virgin soils of newly cleared forests and untrod prairies produced their annual toll of golden grain without the expenditure of scientific effort and optimism was the golden word that hypnotized the growing country. But as the soil was depleted of its first available fertility and a growing population demanded to be fed it was necessary to find means of increasing our production and of holding the farmer's interest to his job.

Mr. Cobb dwelt at length upon the value of the extension department of the state agricultural college and said that with it many substitutes would be palmed off on the farmers who are buying fertilizer and other materials to enrich their farm lands. He said that through the extension movement the farmers were being assisted to get the highest production from their investment.

Following Mr. Cobb, Dr. A. W. Millis, president of Hanover College, was introduced.

Dr. Millis spoke in very complimentary terms of the Farmers' Club and congratulated the farmers of this vicinity in having such a home in the city. He emphasized the unusual advantages which had been provided for them and urged all persons who are eligible to membership to avail themselves of the conveniences. He said that in his opinion the Farmers' Club marked a new advancement in rural life conditions and attached great importance to the movement.

The farmers will be able through this club to co-operate more effectively, the speaker said. He remarked that through co-operation greater progress had been made during the last twenty-five years than during the previous seventy-five years and that even greater progress would be made during the next few years. He referred to the extent of the resources now available to the farming community and said that means and methods were being presented each day that would result in more success.

The county agent movement was highly commended by the speaker. He declared that today the United States, the state and the county are co-operating with the farmer to institute the best methods for enriching the soil and producing larger crops. These departments are making investigations of all sorts, he said, and give the farmer the benefit of their discoveries.

He referred to the new agricultural course which had been provided for the students of Hanover College and said that hereafter this work was to be emphasized. The college is also paying particular attention to the rural life movement with the view of determining what is the best for the rural residents and how their home life can be made more attractive. This department will be enlarged, the speaker asserted.

Dr. Millis declared that the farmer is entitled to the best that life can give them and he urged them to take advantage of such conveniences as are afforded by the Farmers' Club. He said that the people of rural communities were entitled to the same conveniences as the citizens of a city and he urged them to provide such conveniences as far as they could. "Too many farmers are working their lives away to lay up fortunes and get no benefit of their labor," he said. He urged the farmers to make the best of life, to educate their children and to study the modern methods of agriculture as presented by those who are giving their lives to this work.

The unique celebration was a success from every standpoint. Practically every part of the county was well represented and large delegations were present from Redding, Jackson, Hamilton, Vernon and other townships. It has been proposed that similar celebrations be held each year about this time and it is believed that such gatherings will result in a closer cooperation and friendship among the farmers of this county and will result in a vast amount of good.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR BAND'S MINSTREL SHOW PROGRESSING

Outline of Program Gives Promise of Unique and Entertaining Production.

Arrangements are progressing rapidly for the minstrel show to be given by the new Seymour band during the early part of November, and rehearsals are expected to commence in the near future. The arrangements are under the direction of Adolph Steinwedel, the director of the band, and he is leaving nothing undone that will make the occasion a success, both from a financial and an entertainment standpoint.

The production, as outlined, will be one of great variety and uniqueness. The first part will be a spectacular number entitled "The Palace of Mirth," introducing a trained chorus of fifty voices, with six funny end men and jokes that are said to be absolutely new. The second part will include monologues, songs, an instrumental quartette, "The Harmony Four," a splendid vaudeville team, and fifteen minutes of magic by Monsieur Sapolio. The closing act will present a huge military burlesque entitled "Fort Fourflush," with a cast of twenty-five.

The exact date for the show has not been decided upon, but will be announced shortly, when an active ticket selling campaign will be started.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

The Majestic Theater will have on Thursday, October 14th, Wm. H. Kibble's mammoth production of the immortal American drama "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most correct and impressive scenic production of the late Harriet Beecher Stowe's everlasting legacy to posterity ever seen in America, the only version that has been accepted by the pulpit as a moral instructor. No such amount of money as Mr. Wm. H. Kibble has spent on this play has ever before been expended on this neglected and much abused American drama. They have taken great pains in the selection of the cast and have engaged actors for their special fitness for their various parts, rather than for their ability to play some instrument in the band, which has been the rule with managers of like attractions. The company which Mr. Kibble will bring to our city is said to number over fifty people, including negroes to add to the pictures and sing and dance in the levee and other scenes. A special train of Pullman palace cars are required to transport this famous monarch of them all.

Fred Hustedt Dead.

Fred Hustedt died quite suddenly Friday afternoon at his home near Cortland, of stomach trouble. He has been in poor health for some time but his condition did not become alarming until about 9 o'clock Thursday evening. He was the son of August Hustedt and was born in Dearborn county, November 5, 1875, but for many years has lived in Jackson county. Besides the father, August Hustedt, three sisters survive. They are: Mrs. Henry Luckey, Mrs. William Kerkhoff and Miss Sophia Hustedt, all living near Cortland. Fred Hustedt is a nephew of C. H. Hustedt, of this city.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 12:30 at the residence. Burial at the White Creek cemetery near the church.

Mrs. Henry Haag Dead.

Mrs. Henry Haag, mother of Mrs. P. A. Niehter, died Friday evening at her home in Cincinnati, at the age of eighty-five years. Mrs. Niehter has been at her mother's bedside since Sunday. Mrs. Haag has often visited her daughter and had many friends here. The funeral services will be held Monday at Cincinnati.

PROF. JENKINS TELLS OF ROSTAND'S LIFE AND WORK

Interesting Address on French Dramatist Given Before City Teachers and Their Guests.

Prof. Jenkins of Indiana University, delivered the first of a series of lectures on the drama this afternoon at the city teachers' institute, his subject being "Rostand, the Idealist." Prof. Jenkins traced the life, career and works of the great French dramatist in an interesting and entertaining manner and held the close attention of his audience, in which, besides the teachers of the city schools, were many others who were interested in the subject and who took advantage of the opportunity afforded them to hear the lecture. Prof. Jenkins will deliver a series of five lectures during the winter to the teachers, the one today being the first of the series. Many have signified their intention of hearing the entire series of talks.

TRAIN BANDITS GET HALF-MILLION LOOT

Hold Up B. & O. Express Train With Shot Guns.

Wheeling, W. V., Oct. 9.—Armed with sawed-off shotguns, two masked men held up and robbed a Baltimore & Ohio express train near Central, W. Va., and escaped with booty, including $500,000 in unsigned bills, which, it is declared, are legal tender.

The two men, after forcing the engineer and firemen to "split" their train, went about the task of rifling the mail car. They then started toward the Ohio river. Officers at the head of posses, are in hot pursuit.

The robber's haul is one of the largest ever recorded in the nation's history.

Looking over his shoulder Samuel Holmes, the engineer, saw two masked men climbing over the coal, each carrying an automatic shotgun. They called for him not to move, and a minute later he and the fireman were facing the guns.

One of the men ordered Holmes to cut off the engine and through mail from the remainder of the train and then stood by Holmes directing the distance he should run it. When two miles to the west had been covered, the highwaymen ordered Holmes to stop and climb down, while the fireman was compelled to do likewise. The other masked man then took the throttle and, as though well acquainted with the operation of the engine, ran a mile or two farther west.

Here the robbers went through the mail car, paying particular attention to the registered mail, which they looted completely, and they then deserted the train, going across the hills in the direction of the Ohio river. A short time later the engine and mail car were found by a track walker where they had been left.

Kills Himself After Spree Along the White Lights.

New York, Oct. 9.—Percival Moser, of Wilmington, Del., ended four days spree along Broadway with a handsome, attractive woman, not his wife, by taking thirty grains of bichloride of mercury and two grains of morphine at the Hotel Marlborough, where he and the woman had been staying. Moser is in New York hospital with slim chances of recovery. The woman was allowed to leave the hotel and her whereabouts are not known.

The couple were registered as Mr. and Mrs. Brown, of Washington, D. C. Moser told his name and said he was married, after arriving at the hospital, but the woman refused to give hers. She said she also was married and lived in the 1900 block in Green street, Philadelphia, but hotel employees got the impression from her conversation that she also lived in Wilmington.

SERBS BEAT TEUTONS BACK

German Advance Guard Suffers Huge Losses.

MOVE ARCHIVES TO ISTIP
Russian Warships Shell Bulgarian Port—Allies Are Rushing Troops to Aid of Serbia—Clash Is Expected—French Win More Trenches.

London, Oct. 9.—The Austro-German army advance guard which is invading Serbia, has attacked Belgrade and has been annihilated, those not killed being captured by the Serbs who are now holding the main body of the invaders on the Serbian bank of the Danube, according to an official statement issued at Nish.

The Austro-Germans suffered enormous losses in their efforts to force their way into Serbian soil.

A Serbian Allied army is massing at the point where the railway runs nearest to Bulgarian territory and a Bulgarian army is being concentrated on the other side of the frontier in the same district. News of a clash in this region is momentarily expected.

Serbia has declared war on Bulgaria, according to a report received at Geneva. A dispatch received from Nish, while not mentioning any definite declaration of war, corroborates the Swiss report to the extent of announcing that the Bulgarian minister at Nish has received his passports and is preparing to leave at once and that diplomatic relations between the two countries have been severed.

The Austrian-German invasion of Serbia, under the command of Field Marshal von Mackensen, is "taking a favorable course," according to the German official statement, which is the only information yet received of the course of the operations which the Teutonic army is conducting southward from the Drina-Danube and Save rivers, with the idea of gaining quick possession of the railway south from Belgrade to Nish, Salonika and Constantinople.

The Moravia valley, through which the invaders route lines, is suffering heavy floods, according to reports, a condition which should work to the advantage of the Serbs. French and British troops are being rushed north from Salonika by railway to strengthen the Serb army, already made stronger by new guns and supplies of ammunition in prospect of the invasion.

Reports were received that Russian warships are shelling the Bulgarian Black sea port of Varna. No confirmation of these reports was received.

The Serbian government, according to Rome dispatches, is moving its archives from Nish—to which they were removed from Belgrade at the time of the earlier Austrian invasion—to Istip, in the southern part of the kingdom.

The French continued to follow up their important success of several days ago at Tature by taking a German earthwork called Du Trapeze, capturing several trenches and penetrating to a point in front of the second German line of defense. In the salient protecting that line in this region they took two field works and made two hundred prisoners.

In the Champagne, too, the French troops made further headway, the communiques asserts, although no details are given.

The Germans on the other hand, again endeavored in vain to drive a wedge into the allied lines at Loos. After hurling a rain of shells of all calibres upon this place and the regions north and south of it, they tried an attack which the French war office declares was repulsed with heavy losses to them. At other parts of the western front, artillery combats continue without pause.

BERLIN PROTESTS TO GREECE
Objects to Allies Landing Troops at Salonika.

London, Oct. 9.—Germany has protested to Greece against the landing of allied troops at Salonika, according to a statement issued in Berlin by the Overseas news agency, and forwarded by wireless. Greece has not yet replied to the protest. The new Greek ministry has decided to adopt an attitude of "benevolent neutrality" toward the entente powers, according to an Athens dispatch to the Times, and shortly will issue a declaration to this effect.

It appears to be definitely assure that the new ministry will make no further protest against the landing of the Anglo-French troops. The Greek official news agency is quoted in an Athens dispatch as saying that no protest would be made.

Pick Chief's Pocket.
Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 9.—Chief of Police Pursleys' pockets were picked here while he was inspecting the "Girl in the Moon" show at the festival grounds to ascertain if the exhibition were perfectly proper and moral. The chief's mace was stolen, but it was later returned to him by mail with the explanation his friends wanted to see if it could be done.

PRINCE OF WALES SHOT BY FRENCH CORPORAL

Wounded In Arm by Jealous Woman's Husband.

Paris, Sept. 28 (by messenger to New York, Oct. 9).—The Prince of Wales was shot in the arm by a French corporal while taking tea in an inn at a British outpost near Ypres.

The prince then proceeded to head quarters and reported the whole incident to the commander-in-chief. The corporal, under military law is liable to be shot, but no official notice will probably be taken of the incident.

The attendant at the inn is an attractive looking young woman who was passing as an unmarried girl under the name of Barthou, but as a matter of fact she is married to a corporal in a French Hussar regiment named Huguet.

Mlle. Barthou had many admirers among the British staff officers, among whom the inn became a popular resort for tea or other refreshments. News of this state of affairs reached the husband, who became furiously jealous.

Huguet obtained twenty-four hours leave from the French, and, unexpectedly turned up at the inn where his wife was employed. The Prince of Wales and another staff officer were tealing in the inn at the moment. Huguet rushed into the room and without a word of warning fired two shots in rapid succession, one at his wife and another at the two staff officers. Then he turned the weapon on him self.

BELL CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Indianapolis Executive Completes Testimony In Own Behalf.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—Following a cross examination by Assistant Prosecutor Roach, Mayor Joseph E. Bell was excused as a witness in his trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit election frauds. Roach touched but lightly on matters directly connected with the primary, registration and election so far as charges of illegality were concerned. He questioned the mayor about members of the police force and city employees, and went into his appearances before the legislature as an alleged lobbyist.

Mayor Bell said he had appeared before the legislature several times in favor of or against certain measures.

Bell was followed on the witness stand by Adolph Seldensticker, a member of the state board of pardons; Ralph McCarty, an attorney; W. Todd Young, a Republican member of the city council, and Harry M. Franklin, who is employed by the state as an investigator in the election cases. The jury arguments were then begun.

HOPE TO QUASH INDICTMENTS

Hamilton County Bankers' Case Set For October 29.

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 9.—Judge Vestal fixed October 19 as the date for hearing arguments in the motions to quash the indictments against the men who were indicted by the grand jury because of the bank failures in Hamilton county.

Judge Vestal announced that pending the arguments on the motions he would leave vacant places on the criminal calendar to permit the cases to be set for trial in the event the indictments are held good.

The defendants in the case are O. R. Russell, Lee Tescher, R. H. Metcalf Ed and Luther Hinshaw, George Bowen and Elmer L. Sturdevant.

Newton Harding, of Indianapolis, attorney for Metcalf, who is in jail here, asked Judge Vestal to reduce the bond of his client from $4,500 to $2,000. The court took this request under advisement.

EMERGE FROM RECEIVERSHIP

Wabash Railroad Expected to Be Returned to Security Holders.

New York, Oct. 9.—The Wabash railroad, in the hands of receivers for four years, will emerge within two weeks, the receivers be discharged and the property restored to its security holders. This is the expectation of the reorganizers in view of the announcement to the bondholders who came forward to make the payments of the assessment necessary for the reorganization.

The success of the plan of reorganization manager and underwriters, enabling the Wabash to be the first of the big roads to come out of the smash that sent a cluster of the Gould roads into receivership years ago, was regarded in Wall street as a triumph of financing skill and one of the most significant signs of returning prosperity.

Medal Conferred on General.
Rome, Oct. 9.—King Victor Emmanuel conferred a silver medal upon General Zanchi for valor. The presentation was made by the king personally in the presence of the troops.

Rat Bite Causes Poison.
Evansville, Ind., Oct. 9.—Bitten by a rat while she slept, Naida Carrier, may lose her right arm. Blood poisoning has developed and amputation may be necessary.

Use the New Directory of Seymour and Jackson County

And You Will Instantly Appreciate How Valuable a Reference Book It Is in Your Work.

The 1915 Directory which has just been issued, contains 416 pages, substantially bound in attractive gray cloth binding. Among its numerous features are:

- Alphabetical list of all people in Seymour twelve years old and over, together with their occupation, residence and business address and ownership of real estate.
- Alphabetical lists of residents of the incorporated towns of the county, Brownstown, Crothersville and Medora with the same information as the Seymour list.
- Alphabetical lists of taxpayers of Jackson county arranged by townships with the rural route address of each person.
- Seymour Business Directory listing all who are engaged in any line of business in the city.
- City Officers.
- Postoffice Officials.
- School Directory, both for public and parochial schools.
- Churches with their regular appointments.
- Lodges with their regular meeting times.
- Streets and Avenues described and located.
- System of numbering houses.
- Numerical street lists by which the name of a person living at a given street number may be obtained readily.

This Directory has been carefully compiled by home people and every possible effort has been made to secure accuracy in all the numberless details that make up the book.

- If you are a Business man and need an up-to-date reliable mailing list.
- If you are a church, school or lodge worker and have occasion to look up people's addresses
- If you want to select a group of business men in any particular line
- If you want to look up the people living along any street in the city

The BALL of FIRE

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER
and LILLIAN CHESTER

ILLUSTRATED BY C.D. RHODES

CHAPTER XXVII.

Chicken, or Steak?

On the outbreak of a bygone rudeness between the United States and Spain, one free and entirely uncensored metropolitan paper, unable to adequately express its violent emotions on the subject, utilized its whole front page with the one word "War!" printed in red ink.

Now, however, the free and entirely uncensored, having risen most gloriously in the past to every emergency, no matter how great, positively floundered in the very wealth of its opportunities. One brilliant head writer, after trying in vain to combine the diverse elements of this uncomfortably huge sensation, landed on the single word "Yow!" and went out, in a daze, for a drink. One paper landed on the Franco-German war as the leading thrill in this overrich combination of news, one took up the greed of Allison, one featured the world monopoly, one the assured downfall of England, and one the general absorption of everything by the cereal trust.

Saturday night, however, saw no late extras. The "story" was too big to touch without something more tangible than the word of even so substantial a man as Gerald Fosland; and long before any of the twelve eager young gentlemen had reached the office, the scout brigade, hundreds strong, were sniffing over every trail and yelping over every scent.

They traced the visiting diplomats from the time they had stepped down their respective gangplanks to the time they walked up them again. They were unable to locate Joseph G. Clark, the only multimillionaire in America able to crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after him; Robert E. Taylor, who never permitted anybody but a personal friend to speak to him from dinner time on, and Edward E. Allison, of whom there had been no trace since noon. They might just as well not have found the others, for neither Chisholm nor Haverman nor Grandin nor Vance could be induced to make any admissions, he trapped into a yes or no, or grunt in the wrong place. They had grown up with the art of interviewing, and had kept one lap ahead of it, in obedience to nature's first law, which, as every school-boy knows, though older people may have forgotten it, is the law of self-preservation.

Until three o'clock in the morning every newspaper office in New York was a scene of violent gloom. The world's biggest sensation was in those offices, and they couldn't touch it with a pair of tongs! The deterrent was that the interests involved were so large that one might as well sit on a keg of gunpowder and light it, as to make the slightest error. The gentlemen mentioned as the organizers of the International Transportation company collectively owned about all the money and all the power and all the law in the gloriously independent United States of America; and if they got together on any one subject, such as the squashing of a newspaper, for instance, something calm and impressive was likely to happen. On the other hand, if the interesting story the free and entirely uncensored had in its possession were true, the squashing would be reversed, and the freedom and entirely uncensoredness would be still more firmly seated than ever, which is the palladium of our national liberties; and heaven be good to us.

Towards morning there was an army of newspaper men so worried and distressed, and generally consumed with the mad passion of restraint, that there was scarcely a fingernail left in the profession, and frightened-eyed copy boys hid behind doors. Suddenly a dozen telegraph operators, in as many offices, jumped from their desks, as if they had been touched at the same instant by a powerful current from their instruments, and shouted varying phrases, a composite of which would be nearest expressed by: "Let 'er go!"

It had been eight o'clock in the evening in New York when Gerald Fosland had first given out his information, and at that moment it was 1 a. m. in Berlin. At 3 a. m., Berlin time, which was 10 p. m. in New York, the Baron von Slachten, who had been detained by an unusual stress of diplomatic business strolled to his favorite cafe. At 3:05 the Baron von Slachten became the most thought about man in his city, but the metropolitan press of Berlin is slightly fettered and more or less curbed, and there are certain formalities to be observed. It is probable, therefore, that the baron might have gone about his peaceful way for two or three days, had not a fool American, in the advertising branch of one of the New York papers, in an entire ignorance of decent formalities, walked straight out Under den Linden, to Baron von Slachten's favorite cafe, and, picking out the baron at a table with four bushy-faced friends, made this cheerful remark, in the manner and custom of journalists in his native land:

"Well, baron, the International Transportation company has confessed. Could you give me a few words on the subject?"

The baron, who had been about to drink a stein of beer, set down his half liter and stared at the young man blankly. His face turned slowly yellow, and he rose.

"Lass bleiben," the baron ordered the handy persons who were about to remove the cheerful advertising representative and incarcerate him for life, and then the baron walked stolidly out of the cafe, and rode home, and wrote for an hour or so, and ate a heavy early breakfast, and returned to his study, and obligingly shot himself.

This was at seven a. m., Berlin time, which was two a. m. in New York; and owing to the nervousness of an old woman servant, the news reached New York at three a. m., and the big wheels began to go around.

Where was Edward E. Allison? There was nothing the free and entirely uncensored wanted to know so much as that; but the f. and e. u. was doomed to disappointment in that one desire of its heart. Even as he had stumbled down the steps of the Sargent house, Allison was aware of the hideous thing he had done; aware, too, that Jim Sargent was as violent as good-natured men are apt to be. This thought, it must be said in justice to Allison, came last and went away first. It was from himself that he tried to run away, when he shot his runaway out through the park and into the north country, and, by devious roads, to a place which had come to him as if by inspiration; the Willow club, which was only open in the summertime, and employed a feeble old caretaker in the winter. To this haven, black and cold as his own numbed soul, Allison drove in mechanical firmness, and walked around to the kitchen, where he found old Peabody smoking a corn-cob pipe, and laboriously mending a pair of breeches.

"If You Try That Again I Shall Be Compelled to Thrash You."

"Why, howdy, Mr. Allison?" greeted Peabody, rising, and showing up his spectacles. "It's a treat to see anybody these days. I ain't had a visitor for night on to a month. There ain't any provisions in the house, but if you'd like anything I can run over to the village and get it. I got a jug of my own, if you'd like a little snifter. How's things in the city?" and still rambling on with unanswered questions and miscellaneous offers and club grounds information he pattered to the corner cupboard and produced his jug, and poured out a glass of whisky.

"Thanks," said Allison, and drank the liquor mechanically. He was shuddering with the cold, but he had not noticed it until now. He glanced around the room slowly and curiously, as if he had not seen it before. "I think I'll stay out here overnight," he told Peabody. "I'll occupy the office. If anyone rings the phone, don't answer."

"Yes sir," replied Peabody. "Tell you what I'll do, Mr. Allison. I'll muffle the bell. I guess I better light a fire in the office."

"Anything you like," and Allison went towards the office. At the door he turned. "You'll understand, Peabody, that I have come here to be quiet. I wish to be entirely alone with certain important matters which I must decide. If anybody should happen to drop in, get rid of him. Do not say that I am here or have been here."

"Yes sir," replied Peabody. "I know how it is that away. I want to be by myself, often."

Allison went into the office and closed the door after him. It was damp and chill in there, but he did not notice it. He sat down in the swivel chair behind the flat top desk and rested his chin in his hands, and stared out of the window at the bleak and dreary landscape. Just within his range of vision was a lonely little creek, shadowed by a mournful drooping willow which had given the club its name, and in the wintry breeze it waved its long tendrils against the leaden gray sky. Allison fixed his eyes on that oddly beckoning tree and strove to think. Old Peabody came pattering in, and with many a clang and clatter built a fire in the capacious Dutch stove; with a longing glance at Allison, for he was starved with the hunger of talk, he went out again.

At dusk he once more opened the door. Allison had not moved. He still sat with his chin in his hands, looking out at that weirdly waving willow. Old Peabody thought that he must be asleep, until he tiptoed up at the side. Allison's gray eyes, unblinking, were staring straight ahead, with no expression in them. It was as if they had turned to glass.

"Excuse me, Mr. Allison. Chicken or steak? I got 'em both, one for supper and one for breakfast."

Allison turned slowly, part way towards Peabody; not entirely.

"Chicken or steak?" repeated Peabody.

"Eh? Yes. Oh, yes. Yes. The chicken."

The fire had gone out. Peabody rebuilt it. He came in an hour later, and studied the silent man at the desk for a long minute, and then he decided an important question for himself. He brought in Allison's dinner on a tray and set it on the corner of the desk.

At eleven Peabody came in again, to see if Allison were not ready to go to bed; but Allison sent him away as soon as he had fixed the fire. The tray was untouched, and out there in the dim moonlight, which peered now and then through the shifting clouds, the long-armed willow beckoned and beckoned.

Morning came, cold and gray and damp as the night had been. Allison had fallen asleep towards the dawn, sitting at his desk with his heavy head on his arms, and not even the clatter of the building of the fire roused him. At seven when Peabody came, Allison rose up with a start at the opening of the door, but before he glanced at Peabody, he looked out of the window at the willow.

"Good-morning," said Peabody, with a cheerfulness which sounded oddly in that dim, bare room. "I brought you the paper, and some fresh eggs. There was a little touch of frost this morning, but it went away about time for sun-up. How will you have your eggs? Fried, I suppose, after the steak. Seems like you don't have much appetite," and he scrutinized the untouched tray with mingled regret and resentment. Since Allison paid no attention to him, he decided on eggs fried after the steak, and started for the door.

Allison had picked up the paper mechanically. It had lain with the top part downwards, but his own picture was in the center. He turned the paper over, so that he could see the headlines.

"Peabody!" No longer the dead tones of a man in a mental stupor, a man who cannot think, but in the sharp tones of a man who can feel.

"Yes, sir." Sharp and crisp, like the snap of a whip. Allison had scared it out of him.

"Don't come in again until I call you."

"Yes, sir." Grieved this time. Darn it, wasn't he doing his best for the man!

So it had come; the time when his will was not God! A god should be omnipotent, impregnable, unassailable, absolute. He was surprised at the calmness with which he took this blow. It was the very bligness of the hurt which left it so little painful. A man with his leg shot off suffers not one-tenth so much as a man who tears his fingernail to the quick. Moreover, there was that other big horror which had left him stupefied and numb. He had not known that in his ruthlessness there was any place for remorse, or for terror of himself at anything he might choose to do. But there was. He entered into no ravings now, no writhings, no outcries. He realized calmly and clearly all he had done, and all which had happened to him in retribution. He saw the downfall of his stupendous scheme of worldwide conquest. He saw his fortune, to the last penny, swept away, for he had invested all that he could raise on his securities and his business and his prospects, in the preliminary expenses of the International Transportation company, bearing this portion of the financial burden himself, as part of the plan by which he meant to obtain ultimate control and command of the tremendous consolidation, and become the king among kings, with the whole world in his imperious grasp, a sway larger than that of any potentate who had ever sat upon a throne, larger than the sway of all the monarchs of earth put together, as large terrestrially as the sway of God himself! All these he saw crumbled away, fallen down around him, a wreck so complete that no shred or splinter of it was worth the picking up; saw himself disgraced and discredited, hated and ridiculed throughout the length and breadth and circumference of the very earth he had meant to rule; saw himself discarded by the strong men whom he had inveigled into this futile scheme and saw himself forced into commercial death as wolves rend and devour a crippled member of their pack; last, he saw himself loathed in the one pure breast he had sought to make his own; and that was the deepest hurt of all; for now, in the bright blaze of his own conflagration, he saw that, beneath his grossness, he had loved her, after all, loved her with a love which, if he had shorn it of its dross, might perhaps have won her.

Through all that day he sat at the desk, and when the night time came again, he walked out of the house, and across the field, and over the tiny footbridge, under the willow tree with the still beckoning arms; and the world, his world, the world he had meant to make his own, never saw him again.

When Baby Has the Croup.

When a mother is awakened from sound sleep to find her child who has gone to bed apparently in the best of health struggling for breath, she is naturally alarmed. Yet if she can keep her presence of mind and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy every ten minutes until vomiting is produced, quick relief will follow and the child will drop to sleep to awaken in the morning as well as ever. This remedy has been in use for many years with uniform success. Obtainable everywhere.

John D. Jr. Praises His Father.
Denver, Colo., Oct. 9.—John D. Rockefeller Jr. addressed the weekly luncheon of the Denver chamber of commerce. More than five hundred persons were present and the New Yorker was given a tremendous ovation. The millionaire's address was largely devoted to a defense of his father. He spoke in the most affectionate terms of John D. Sr., and hoped every man present might meet his parent.

For Indigestion.

Never take pepsin and preparations containing pepsin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take the more you will have to take. What is needed is a tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets that will enable the stomach to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.

BUSY DAY FOR WILSON PARTY

President and Fiancee Cynosure of All Eyes.

CROWDS WATCH ROMANCE

Chief Executive Devoted as a Cavalier, Care-Free, In Attendance Upon Mrs. Galt—Witness Ball Game at Philadelphia.

New York, Oct. 9.—It was a care-free, new Woodrow Wilson that came to New York so jauntily, so blithely, with the lady he is to wed early in December, Mrs. Norman Galt of Washington.

The program of the couple included a long automobile ride through the parks, a dinner party at the home of Colonel and Mrs. House, and a theater party.

Lines, graven by cares of office and strain of responsibility, seemed, somehow, to have been erased by perfect happiness. All loverlike, devoted as a cavalier, buoyant, debonaire, he attended the lady's every step and displayed, in the pleasant little formalities, of autoing and visiting and theater going the shining fact that he is as merry, one might say, as a marriage bell.

And the lady? Well, one may, with all restraint, say that she is charming and so proceed to give such details as every woman wants to know, and all men, too, if the truth be told. New York, crowding in the Pennsylvania station, jammed along the streets, hanging out of windows gayly saluting from passing autos, reaching, caught its breath when Mrs. Galt, her face aglow, appeared at the president's side.

They observed, as the president, with attentive grace, swept off his hat and handed Mrs. Galt into the waiting limousine, that she was of more than the average height of woman, but so beautifully proportioned that her rather unusual height was not especially noticeable.

Probably a woman should have described in much detail the costume of the president's fiancée. If a man may be allowed, it can be said that she wore a tailored, black suit, a black toque, close fitting, and that the somberness of the costume was relieved by a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and red roses which had gone to her with a greeting from the president, from the White House conservatories.

They left this morning for Philadelphia, where they plan to witness the second game of the world series baseball championship. Immediately after that they will go to Washington on a special train.

At the theater "Grumpy" was the play, but the president and Mrs. Galt were easily the stars. As they entered the theater the entire audience arose and applauded. The applause continued until the president, Mrs. Galt and Miss Bones appeared in their box and were seated.

Several hundred persons were gathered at the Pennsylvania station when the couple arrived. They were accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Bolling, Mrs. Galt's mother; Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, the president's cousin; Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., the president's physician and naval aide. An unusually large number of secret service men, headed by Chief Flynn, was with them.

Colonel House and Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York, were at the station to greet the president and his party.

No definite information was obtainable as to the date of the wedding, but the announcement is expected in the near future.

HOW MANY NUTS HAVE ANNA BELLE, MARJORIE AND BROTHER JACK PICKED?

ANNA BELLE Goes Nutting

Dear Friends:-The other day when Brother Harold suggested that we go nutting Marjorie and I thought it would be fine. Mother said it would be all right as we were going very close to home and could spend the time after school was out in this way. Brother Harold got a big sack out of the barn and we started out. Fortunately no one had been to the trees lately and we got just lots of nuts at our first stop and that was in sight of home. We returned real early and Marjorie suggested that we make some chocolate caramels and put nut kernels in it. That sounded fine to us and we did so. The candy was just dandy, so I'm going to give you the recipe-Here it is.

Chocolate Caramels.

Take one pint of sugar, one pint of New Orleans molasses (or sorghum) one-fourth pound of butter, one-fourth pound of grated chocolate, one-half cupful of sweet cream-while it is cooking try often by dropping a little off a spoon into cold water and if it hardens the candy is done. When about done add a teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring and about a half-pint of nut kernels. Mix in the nuts well and when done pour out on greased tins or plates so that the candy is about one-fourth inch thick. After it sets cut into squares and you'll find you have the same delicious candy that we enjoyed.

I hope you are doing nicely in SEWING SOCIETY work and I'm sure we will find lots of good work to do during the coming winter months. Write me what progress you're having. Address me care this paper. Lovingly,
